Outdoor concerts bring local performers to seven Cape communities

Tripping Lily will perform in all seven Cape communities hosting free, weekly outdoor concerts this summer. Cape Cod Times File

By Judith Reppucci

Whether you spend your day strolling through shops, enjoying the beach or even working at your job, a good old-fashioned outdoor concert is a popular way for both residents and visitors to switch gears and enjoy the evening. There's no shortage of performance choices, either. This summer, in celebration of the series' fifteenth year, free weekly concerts are being performed in seven Cape Cod communities.

Presented by the Arts Foundation of Cape Cod and the Citizens Bank Foundation, the family-friendly community programs feature a wide variety of music from local artists, with weeknight performances staged at centrally located or downtown venues that are handy for those who want to take a stroll or enjoy dinner later. Of course, you and your family might choose to bring a picnic, and you'll certainly want to bring along a blanket or folding chairs. Sit, relax and end your hometown day with the special sounds of an outdoor concert under the stars. Should it rain, however, remember that shows are not rescheduled.
