Travelers Alert: New airport construction phasing plan being developed for relocation of parking lots

Site preparation for a new passenger terminal and air traffic control tower at Barnstable Municipal Airport is planned for July and August, airport commissioners reported this month. One of the first visible signs of progress will be the relocation of several parking lots to accommodate the site work. Airport Manager Bud Breault reported that Suffolk Construction, the general contractor, is developing a phasing plan to change the location of and access to some of the lots. "The goal," he said, "is to emphasize access, safety and security with minimal disruption to our customers and airline operations." Breault added that the work has to be done, unfortunately, during the busy season. "But we will develop a plan to communicate the changes to the traveling public well ahead of time," he said. HACC will keep you apprised of construction progress as it becomes available.

La Petite France Cafe participating in Boston Bakes for Cancer

Cape Cod has a breast cancer rate 20 percent higher than the national average. This statistic has motivated thousands of women and their families to raise funds for cancer research. Some walk for a cure; some run; others bake. Thirteen Cape and Island restaurants, bakeries and cafes and ice cream shops are teaming up along with hundreds of other establishments across the state for the 11th
