

Money for theaters

By KATHI SCRIZZI DRISCOLL | Published: APRIL 29, 2010 | 0 Comments

Several area theater projects will receive grants for projects through the Arts Foundation of Cape Cod. The awards will be presented at a reception tonight (April 29) and benefit the groups all year long. The event, open to the public, takes place 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Provincetown Art Association and Museum.

The theater groups are among 23 local cultural organizations receiving grants totalling more than $25,000.

The theater-oriented recipients are:

- Eventide Arts: $1,000 to fund its current production of "Master Class," a songwriters competition, and the New Playwrights, New Plays program.
- Harwich Junior Theatre: $2,000 to commission and produce "Old Mother West Wind" in collaboration with the Thornton W. Burgess Society.
- Provincetown Tennessee Williams Theater Festival: $1,500 to support the premiere next fall of a musical play "The Jazz Funeral of Stella Brooks," by playwright Terry Abrahamson, to be directed by Priscilla Sample of CTEK Arts.
- Provincetown Theater Foundation: $1,250 to expand the Provincetown Children's Theater to four series of theater arts classes for children and four full productions of family-friendly plays each year.
- Universal Theatre: $969 to support a three-day annual festival of short plays.

Arts Foundation of Cape Cod grants are awarded twice a year. The next deadline for applications will be announced on the AFCC website. Guidelines for grant applications are available at www.artsfoundation.org/grants-program or by calling the Arts Foundation of Cape Cod at 508-362-0066.
